At Northwest Medical Specialties, physicians trained in conditions of the liver and digestive system (hepatologists and gastroenterologists) offer comprehensive medical and surgical treatment for patients with disorders of the liver and digestive tract. Our physicians seamlessly combine cutting edge technologies with compassionate patient care to detect, diagnose and treat complex conditions of the liver, pancreas, gall bladder, esophagus, stomach, small intestine and colon.

Our endoscopic gastroenterology team provides advanced therapeutic endoscopic interventions for complex disorders and diseases of the gastrointestinal tract, liver, bile ducts and pancreas. Our endoscopists have the specialized expertise and additional training required to perform minimally invasive endoscopic procedures that can often spare patients from having to undergo major surgeries.
Our gastroenterologists have extensive experience in diagnostic and interventional endoscopy with a special focus on:

- Esophageal cancer
- Pancreatic cancer
- ERCP and treatment of tumors
- Chronic Biliary conditions
- Acute/chronic pancreatitis
- Barrett’s esophagus with radiofrequency ablation (Halo procedure)
- Endoscopic ultrasound with fine needle aspiration and fiducial marker placement
- Bile duct and pancreatic duct stones
- Enteral stent placement for intestinal obstruction
- Pancreatic pseudocyst drainage
- Choledochoscopy and pancreatoscopy with lithotripsy

As part of a nationally recognized academic medical center, our endoscopic gastroenterologists also participate in research to evaluate and implement new minimally-invasive endoscopic technologies and techniques. At Northwest Medical Specialties, we are committed to offer each patient the best available medical technology and procedures available. As part of the University of Washington Medicine system, we also collaborate with physicians with the Seattle Cancer Care Alliance and at the University of Washington Medical Center in the care of patients who may require complex surgery or other therapies.
